Parkinson's Disease

For Us, Care is Personal

Our commitment to Parkinson's care is deeply personal. Co-founder Jill Kidwell's husband lived with Parkinson's Disease for over 20 years. For much of that time, changes were subtle—until daily life became more challenging.

The family sought caregivers who would do more than complete a checklist. When CareProvide co-founder Jennifer Cua joined their care team, they discovered what had been missing: truly holistic care. She supported his book writing, prepared meals aligned with his digestive needs and medication schedule, helped him stay active by working alongside PT and OT, collaborated with speech therapists to maintain his voice, and delivered personal care with dignity and compassion.

What Makes CareProvide Different

Their shared experience shaped CareProvide—care designed to adapt as needs change and support the whole person, not just the condition. We walk alongside clients and families, providing steady, thoughtful care at every stage of the journey.

We know Parkinson's care requires understanding the why, not just the what. Our approach includes:

- Specially trained caregivers familiar with Parkinson's symptoms and progression
- Consistent staffing, so caregivers learn routines, preferences, and subtle cues
- Close coordination with families and clinical providers, including neurologists and therapists
- Parkinson's InCIRCLE CarePartners™ providing in-home PT, OT, and speech therapy
- Established relationships with Rock Steady programs and Parkinson's-focused fitness resources
- A commitment to supporting the entire family—not just the individual

Why Specialized Parkinson's Care Matters

Parkinson's disease rarely follows a predictable path. Symptoms shift. Energy levels vary. Medication timing becomes critical. What works one month may not work the next.

Effective care requires caregivers who understand these changes and can respond thoughtfully—while helping clients stay engaged in the routines and activities that give their days meaning.

Our Parkinson's InCIRCLE CarePartners™

At CareProvide, exceptional care extends beyond our team. Our InCIRCLE CarePartners™ are a curated network of trusted local providers offering services that complement and enhance care at home.

Therapists, fitness professionals, and specialists work in coordination with our caregivers so that therapy goals are reinforced between visits. Care becomes connected, communication becomes clear, and families feel supported rather than overwhelmed.

Our Parkinson's CarePartners™ offer:

- Speech therapy
- Physical therapy
- Movement programs
- Parkinson's support groups
- Fitness training

Support starts here. Contact us for a complimentary copy of our Parkinson's InCIRCLE CarePartners™ Guide.

You Don't Have to Walk This Journey Alone

If you are navigating a new diagnosis—or noticing changes that feel harder to manage—we are here. Care begins with a conversation. Not a contract.

Speak with one of our nurses about what life looks like now, and how thoughtful, steady support can help preserve what matters most.
